International Scanning A to Z

All International items, regardless of item prefix, require delivery or attemped delivery scans.

ALL international item bar-codes from A to Z must be scanned. If you see multiple barcodes or have any doubts, scan ALL barcodes on every international item you deliver.

Here are some examples:

Based on existing service agreements, the USPS can earn millions of dollars in revenue just for properly scanning inbound international products at delivery. But when we deliver items without scanning them, we walk away from revenue we've earned. As international mail volume increases, so do the expectations that USPS provides the highest levels of service and visibility to our international and domestic customers. You're already doing the hard part. Now let's make sure every piece counts — for international mail
